17-18. (any two, wording may vary) Extract general knowledge that does not require you to cite a specific source; Use a direct quote and cite the source; Paraphrase part of the paragraph and give reference to the author for the idea; Summarize the paragraph and refer to the author for his idea.

19. rough

20. (wording may vary) He polishes and perfects the first draft and subsequent drafts until a final draft is created.

21. (wording may vary) Footnotes are short notes in a research paper that refer to books or other sources from which a writer used information to support or include in his text.

22. (wording may vary) A bibliography is an alphabetized list of all the sources the writer used for his research paper.

23. (wording may vary) The purpose of a cover page is to provide the title of the paper, the author's information, and the purpose of the paper.

24-25.

_X_ (a) concise and descriptive
_X_ (b) indicative of the nature of . . .
____ (c) detailed and story-like
____ (d) creative and flowing

26-27. (The sentence should not being with there was, and a comma is needed before the subordinate clause.) Suggested wording: "No military draft was implemented except for a failed attempt by Lincoln in the Civil War, which ended with justified riots and rebellion against it."

28-29. (The word attitudes should not have an apostrophe; the word century is misspelled.) The attitudes toward the draft definitely changed over the past century.

30-31. (A comma is needed between the two independent clauses; the word liberties is misspelled.) A return to the spirit of the Republic would mean that a draft would never be used, and all able-bodied persons would be willing to volunteer in defense of their liberties.

32-34. (The word lovings should be loving; the word Americans should not have an apostrophe; the word defend is misspelled.) A conscripted army can never replace the willingness of freedom-loving Americans to defend their country out of their love for liberty

35-36. (The word Without should be capitalized; the semicolon should be a comma.) Without the willingness to do so, liberty cannot be saved.

LIFE PRINCIPLES

37. honest
38. peace
39. carefully
40. success
41. close
